MILLION-DOLLAR MAN JAMES HOLZHAUER BRINGS TOTAL WINNINGS TO $1,061,554 WITH 14th 'JEOPARDY!' WIN

CULVER CITY, CALIF. (April 23, 2019) – On today's episode of JEOPARDY!, James Holzhauer, a 34-year-old professional sports gambler from Las Vegas, Nev., became only the second person in the show's history to earn more than $1 million in regular-season (non-tournament) play when his 14th win brought his total winnings to $1,061,554.

"Despite what 'The Social Network' says, $1 million felt really cool," said Holzhauer.

The only other contestant to earn more than $1 million in regular-season games is Ken Jennings, whose 74-game streak yielded $2,520,700.

In addition to passing $1 million, today's game was an additional milestone for Holzhauer: winning his 14th game means he is now in fourth place on the all-time JEOPARDY! consecutive wins list. Only Jennings (74 wins), Julia Collins (20 wins), and David Madden (19 wins) have won more.

Tune in Wednesday to watch Holzhauer's next game. Check local listings for show times and stations.
